As Adult Learners' Week kicks off on 17 May the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) will be celebrating the success of the Adult Learning Grant (ALG), designed to help adults overcome financial barriers to learning.

Introduced in June 2007 the ALG is a weekly grant designed to help adults studying full time with the costs of learning. The grant pays up to £30 per week for eligible learners aged 19 and over who are studying for certain qualifications.

Since the grant became available ALG has supported over 1,600 people going back to learning in the East Midlands, including 20 year old Kiran Aslam, who lives with her parents in Normanton, Derby.

Kiran is coming to the end of her BTEC National Diploma in Health Studies at Derby College. After this she hopes to get a place at university so she can become a midwife.

Kiran said:

"I absolutely love babies and seem to spend most of my free time looking after friends' and family's babies.

“From when I was little I was always playing with baby dolls and playing mum and always knew that this was the kind of work I wanted to do.

“The money through the ALG is really, really helpful and I use it for essential things like bus fares and lunches. While studying my previous courses the ALG wasn’t around so I was really struggling for money and was borrowing off my mum. I think I can safely say she’s written that debt off for now though!”

Mick Brown, Area Director for the Learning and Skills Council in Derbyshire, said:

“The Adult Learning Grant is a real incentive for people across Derbyshire to learn and embrace new skills to improve their job prospects. It’s fair to say that many people recognise the importance of continuing to learn but feel restricted by money. Up to £30 a week can really make the difference when it comes to buying course materials or even putting it towards childcare.

“Adult Learners’ Week is the perfect opportunity for everyone to think seriously about investing in their future and explore the financial grants available to them. Learning a new skill or enhancing those you already have is one of the smartest investments to increase your worth and could result in a £2,000 to £3,000 increase in annual salary.

“Beyond the attractive financial benefits of investing in your future, learning a new skill can help boost confidence and facilitate a job move. Going back to learning allows people to gain the qualifications they need to pursue a job with great job satisfaction and improve their sense of self worth.

“To find out if you’re eligible for the grant visit www.direct.gov.uk/alg or telephone 0800 100 900.”

Developed as part of a new Government initiative to improve the levels of both vocational and academic skills in the UK, ALG is intended to be a helping hand for adults who want to learn more skills, but have certain financial worries.

Derby College Principal David Croll said:

“We are dedicated to ensuring our students receive all the help possible to pursue their studies. The Adult Learning Grant has certainly been really useful to our students and we’re pleased that students like Kiran are getting the help they need to pursue their dreams through the grant.

“It’s a great incentive for people to learn new skills as £30 can go a long way. We would certainly encourage students or those thinking about studying to see if they are eligible.”

If you are thinking about going back to college this year it’s time to start looking at your options. ALG could help you – to find out if you are eligible visit www.direct.gov.uk/alg or call 0800 100 900 today.

Notes to editors

1. Adult Learners' Week 2008 begins on 17 May. The annual week long national campaign is celebrated in over 40 countries and is designed to inspire people to pursue adult learning.
2. The Adult Learning Grant (ALG), a new service from the Learning and Skills Council, is a weekly grant designed to help adults studying full-time with the costs of learning. The grant pays up to £30* per week (around £1,000 a year) for full time learners aged 19 and over who are studying for a first full Level 2 (5 GCSEs at grades A* to C or an NVQ2 or its equivalent) or a first full Level 3 (2 A levels or an NVQ3 or its equivalent) qualification.
3. The Adult Learning Grant is important because skills shortages continue to have a negative impact on UK productivity and competitiveness in the face of fast-growing economies. ALG aims to encourage individuals to return to education by offering a helping hand to contribute to things like books, travel and learning materials while they study.

5. The LSC exists to make England better skilled and more competitive ensuring the availability of high-quality education and training for everyone. We have a single goal: to improve the skills of England's young people and adults to world class standards. Our vision is that young people and adults in England have knowledge and skills matching the best in the world and are part of a truly competitive workforce. We work nationally, regionally and locally to deliver this ambition on behalf of learners and employers.
