

ADULT LEARNING GRANT PROVIDES INVESTMENT IN LANCASHIRE'S SKILL SET FOLLOWING SUCCESSFUL PILOT

Publication number PN001

The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) today announces the national roll out of the Adult Learning Grant (ALG), a £35 million investment that will make a significant contribution to improving Lancashire's skilled workforce. The roll out will follow a successful pilot programme in Lancashire where 1,137 people have received ALG in 2006/7.

ALG is a weekly grant designed to help adults studying full-time with the costs of learning. The grant pays up to £30 per week¹ for full time learners aged 19 and over who are studying for their first full level two or level three, which is equivalent to 5 GCSEs or 2 A Levels.

Developed as part of a new Government initiative to improve the levels of both vocational and academic skills in the UK, ALG is intended to be a helping hand for adults who want to learn more skills, but have certain financial worries.

Following the challenge set for the UK to become world leader in all levels of skills², the Government intends to make the UK population fully aware of the learning and training opportunities available to them.

Janet Jackson, LSC Lancashire Partnership Manager, said:

"We found that many people felt held back in their careers by a lack of skills, but often financial problems stopped them from learning these skills. In pilot areas such as Lancashire, ALG has already started to help people cross this barrier with 1,137 people already receiving ALG. It's been great to see that 95 per cent of people involved in the pilots have applied for courses that teach job-related skills that will help them progress in their careers. “

The pilot campaign has been a proven success in improving retention, with 93 per cent of ALG learners in completing their courses (above the average of 85 per cent) With an average lifetime salary difference of £185,817³ between someone with a Level 2 and Level 3 qualification, it is evident that staying on to finish a course and acquire new skills can make a significant difference.

Skills Minister Phil Hope said:

“This Government's sweeping reforms to raise skills and improve people's life chances mean that the Government will support low-income learners to ensure that they are not prevented from participating in learning and training. The Adult Learning Grant is now being extended to full national coverage from this September to help people meet the additional costs of learning.

“ALG will now complement the entitlement to free tuition for young adults aged 19-25 undertaking first level 2 or 3 qualifications - equivalent to 5 good GCSEs or 2 A levels. We will ensure everyone has the skills they need for employability and that employers get the skilled people they need for better productivity and the competitiveness of the nation”.

Janet Jackson, LSC Lancashire Partnership Manager, added:

“ALG offers learners a helping hand to get back into education, without having to worry about financial problems. It can be used to help with anything from the cost of books and materials through to childcare costs.”

With a continued skills shortage in the UK⁴, ALG will be just one of the new tools available from the LSC that will help generate better career related qualifications which could contribute to a stronger economy for all.

Notes to Editors

Adult Learning Grant:

The Adult Learning Grant (ALG), a new service from the Learning and Skills Council, is a weekly grant designed to help adults studying full-time with the costs of learning. The grant pays up to £30* per week (around £1,000 a year) for full time learners aged 19 and over who are studying for a first full Level 2 (5 GCSEs at grades A* to C or an NVQ2 or its equivalent) or a first full Level 3 (2 A levels or an NVQ3 or its equivalent) qualification.

The Adult Learning Grant is important because skills shortages continue to have a negative impact on UK productivity and competitiveness in the face of fast-growing economies.

ALG aims to encourage individuals return to education by offering a helping hand to contribute to things like books, travel and learning materials while they study.

Since 2003 ALG has spread to 24 areas of England.

Learning and Skills Council:

The LSC exists to make England better skilled and more competitive. We are responsible for ensuring the availability of high-quality education and training for everyone. We have a single goal: to improve the skills of England's young people and adults to world class standards. Our vision is that young people and adults in England have knowledge and skills matching the best in the world and are part of a truly competitive workforce. We work nationally, regionally and locally to deliver this ambition on behalf of learners and employers.
